COMPUTERS & STRUCTURES

An International Journal

Editor-in-Chief: HAROLD LIEBOWITZ, School of Engineering and Applied Science, George Washington University, Washington DC 20052, USA

Computers & Structures provides a medium for the communication of information concerning the applications of computers (digital, analog and hybrid) and computer programs to the solution of scientific and structural engineering problems related to hydrospace, aerospace and terrestrial structures. Particular attention is devoted to the practical engineering aspects of structural analysis, design and optimization.

Topics regularly covered include structural mechanics, fluid mechanics and oceanography as utilized to establish structural loading, soil mechanics and foundations engineering, geology and geophysics and materials science and engineering, including fatigue, creep, relaxation, fracture and stress corrosion.

The journal is intended to be of interest and utility to the researcher and practitioner in the academic, governmental and industrial communities.

A Selection of Papers

K K TAMMA & A A YURKO (USA), A unified finite element modelling/analysis approach for thermal-structural response in layered composites.
R LARSSON & N-E WIBERG (Sweden), Stability of elastic plane frames including soil-structure interaction.
A A SLONIM (Israel), Computer approximation for the analysis of transient processes in nonoscillating engineering systems.
J EZECHIAS (Czechoslovakia), Contribution to the calculation of thick arcs with respect to shearing strain and extension of the centroid axis.
R GHADIMI (UK), A simple and efficient algorithm for the static and dynamic analysis of flexible marine risers.
S H LO (France), Finite element mesh generation over curved surfaces.
T BELYTSCHKO & B E ENGLEMANN (USA), Explicit time integration with enhanced stability for structural dynamics.

A Software Survey section is included in this journal.

This journal contains a Cauzin Softstrip ®, providing each issue's table of contents in a machine readable form.

VERTICA

The International Journal of Rotorcraft and Powered Lift Aircraft

Editor-in-Chief: PERETZ FRIEDMANN, Mechanical, Aerospace and Nuclear Engineering Department, University of California, Los Angeles, CA 90024, USA

This international journal provides a medium for the rapid publication of original research papers devoted to all aspects of the technology and usage of rotorcraft and powered lift aircraft. It is designed to encourage the exchange of ideas, opinions and technical knowledge between engineers, scientists and operators in the field and widen awareness of research and development trends in this rapidly expanding field throughout the world.
Vertica maintains an appropriate balance between the operational and technical aspects, both civil and military.
The journal includes original papers and technical notes as well as specially commissioned authoritative review articles. The journal also regularly features discussions on previous papers and is supplemented by letters to the editor on new developments. Reviews of important new books of interest are also included.
The journal publishes an international news section which reports important world events and includes summaries of important meetings. A calendar of important forthcoming events and announcements of future meetings is included.

A Selection of Papers

G A PIERCE & S S KLEIN (USA), A unique approach to aeroelastic testing of scaled rotors.
J M DREES (USA), Expanding tilt rotor capabilities.
R M MCKILLIP Jr (USA), Kinematic observers for active control of helicopter rotor vibration.
F CHANGQING & W SHICUN (China), Aeroelastic stability of rotor blades by lifting surface theory and finite element method.
D MENAKER & A ROSEN (Israel), A model for helicopter performance calculations.
W JOHNSON (USA), Time-domain unsteady aerodynamics of rotors with complex wake configurations.
A GRABER & A ROSEN (Israel), A parametric investigation of a free wake analysis of hovering rotors.
H E JONES & F X CARADONNA (USA), Full potential modelling of blade - vortex interactions.
